The truth is that when we go on from the physical to the spiritual, no fourth dimension appears, but the third dimension drops away. From this simple reflection, therefore, we see that the sum of nature's laws, in so far as we come to know them through sense-observation, is adapted solely to breaking down the human organism and does nothing to build it up. The same thing is described by people who experience a shock through the threat of imminent death by drowning perhaps; and what they describe is confirmed - I always add this - by persons who think in an entirely materialistic way. I lay on the white sheets, not sure what to. They say they have learned a lot, so many interesting things and information - also from the explanations given by the 'Hans Bender-personality - about ectoplasm and other mediumistic productions Are Mediums Real?
