Their friendship has blossomed during the last two years. I have seen my son at least once a month and have also met both sets of his grandparents. I was alone in this experience as the biological father made it clear he was going to stay out of any decision I would make.

They would agree to meet the birth mother beforehand and send periodic notes. When I did manage to fall asleep at night, I would dream and have signs that would leave me waking up contemplating adoption. One Step Closer Happily for us, we were selected as potential adoptive parents by four different birth mothers. I have used it with my preschool aged children to help them gain a better understanding. The agency had warned the Anhalts that some birth moms change their mind after the baby has been placed.
